

Fanos is a seasoned communications coach with 20 years of experience guiding individuals and organizations to reach their full potential. He's worked with many notable clients from numerous industries both in the UK and internationally, and regularly works with business schools on programs including presentation skills, influencing and persuading, executive presence and difficult conversations. Recently, he became a faculty member at one of the leading professional service companies where he facilitates a course on negotiation skills for senior managers across Europe. He is also currently studying to become an EMCC accredited executive coach, further enhancing his coaching expertise.

Fanos is also a passionate actor and voiceover artist. After training at ALRA, he has enjoyed playing a variety of roles in theatre, TV and video games, from West End productions to national and international tours, earning him a nomination for an Off West End award for best supporting actor.

With a master's degree in voice from the Royal Central School of Speech and Drama, Fanos understands how our voices influence performances—not just on stage and screen, but in everyday conversations too.

Before venturing into acting and coaching, he studied Aerospace Engineering at university and worked in airline flight operations for Britannia Airways, TUI and easyJet. During this time, he served as a union representative, successfully negotiating pay deals, dealing with member disputes and leading a successful collective grievance against the cabin crew union BASSA. His further experience in cruise travel sales and various customer relations roles helped him develop strong communication skills.

Fanos truly enjoys the dynamic nature of his work and the rich diversity of experiences from his participants and coaches, and combines his operational know-how with his actor training and experience to create an engaging learning environment. He thrives on helping others enhance their performance to achieve both their personal and professional goals.